Dear Participants,

It is my pleasure to welcome you in Lyon. This is an important and impatiently awaited moment for IAMCR, because it is our first main face-to-face conference after the COVID pandemic.

This pandemic sadly demonstrates the complexities of “Inhabiting the planet”—our conference theme—but it also shows how necessary it is to organise reflections about the many dimensions behind these three words, no longer taking that planet and its multiplicity of inhabitants for granted.

This conference is an invitation to all of us to critique our past and contemporary practices, at the level of communication and media, and beyond, but also to contribute to thinking a more just planet, regarding our interhuman relations but also when it comes to all other living beings on the planet.

At the same time, this conference is also an invitation to enjoy the pleasures of academic interaction, togetherness and proximity, and to celebrate the importance of communication and media studies scholarship, in its global dimension.

Finally: So many people made this conference possible, and I am deeply grateful to all of them. A warm thanks to the Local Organizing Committee, the IAMCR Executive Director and our secretariat, the IAMCR Executive Board, the IAMCR International Council, and the Heads of our many Sections and Working Groups.

I hope you will enjoy the conference,
Nico Carpentier
President, IAMCR

Welcome!

Unlike previous editions of the conference, IAMCR 2023 is supported by a university, which welcomes about 2000 students per year and does not even have one hundred tenured professors, this is why except for Dr C. Gaboriaux and I, our local organizing committee welcomed colleagues from the Universities of Lyon2 (Dr I. Hare, PhD Student F. Saboul) and Lyon3 (Pr A. Staii, Dr V. Dymytrova), relied for logistics on the Congress Cell of Lyon1, the communication department of SPL (V.Goin) and Emma, my assistant.

But in fact, there are only 7 academics in the LOC and the goal was quite ambitious. However, the team which has been working throughout it all with me has done its best and spared no effort to prepare this congress and to offer you plenaries of high quality, rich in exchanges and open-mindedness. If we came together to prepare everything to welcome you at the best and to propose a diversified and quality program, it is thanks to the unfailing support of the director of our High School and the Head of Research, who believed in this project and helped us to make the conference as successful as possible. We are indebted to Pr H.Surrel, current director of Sciences Po Lyon, and Pr R. Payre, former director, as well as Pr J.Blanc, the former director of research, who was the first to enthusiastically support the project in 2019. But I am also indebted to Nico Carpentier and Bruce Girard, who accompanied me, reassured, supported and relaxed throughout the preparation of the conference.

In all our efforts, we were also supported by several sponsors. The first of them and the most important is the Metropole de Lyon which has largely supported the opening cocktail of Sunday, as the theme of the Congress resonates with its objectives to make Lyon a calm, green and sustainable metropolis. Metropolitan Office of Business Tourism, OnlyLyon also helped us from the beginning of preparations for the board inspection journey in June 2022. Finally, Elico, the research group in Information Sciences and Communication contributed to the signage on the Rockefeller site. That is why I personally thank Pr Garcin-Marrou.

All together, we look forward to welcoming you, meeting you and we hope that our academic, logistical and entertaining preparations will suit you.

Thanks to all. Yes, we did it!
Pr Françoise Paquienséguy
Chair, Local Organising Committee

I would like to welcome you to the IAMCR 2023 conference from 9 to 13 July 2023 which is being held this year in Lyon, France, face-to-face after three online editions due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

For the first time in its history, it is not a university with a communication faculty that is hosting the IAMCR annual conference, but an Institute of Political Science. This is a strong symbol, it emphasizes the interdisciplinarity of our work but also the multidisciplinary richness of the research objects we are involved in, first and foremost media, governance, public policies, citizenship and territories.

As Director of Sciences Po Lyon, I have the pleasure and honour of hosting this Congress being important for all of us, as current events require us to reflect about and consider our future life, our life of tomorrow. Sciences Po Lyon is an institution which has some 70 tenured professors and welcomes some 2,000 students. Our concerns reflect firmly the core topics of the Congress in our course offer as well as by the public we welcome. Thus, in order to welcome you in the best possible conditions, the conference will be held on the Rockefeller site of the University of Lyon 1.

A rich and varied programme has been prepared by the local organising committee and our various partners. From July 9 to 13, it will offer, as usual, plenary sessions, round tables, special sessions, verbal communication workshops and a conference dinner at the Musée des Confluences, Lyon cultural hotspot.

I sincerely hope that this conference will be a moment of meeting, exchange and conviviality between researchers from all over the world, we all being concerned by the theme we have chosen: "Inhabiting the planet: Challenges for media, communication and beyond".

Bienvenue à Lyon
Hélène Surrel
Director, Sciences Po Lyon

About the Conference

Outlined by the 33 sections and working groups, the IAMCR conference 2023 covers a broad diversity of topics, proposing an individual central theme to be explored throughout the conference with the aim of producing and pursuing diverse perspectives on a shared set of issues. Three days prior to the start of the conference, academics, scholars, and researchers will have the chance to come together in Grenoble, Montpellier, or Lyon, participating in one of this year's 10 pre-conferences. These pre-conferences provide an exemplary prelude to the conference itself, exploring a variety of subjects, such as climate, journalism, media, and communication. Sunday, July 9th then begins the 2023 Conference, which will include four plenaries, 16 partner and special sessions, and numerous parallel sessions of our sections and working groups. The IAMCR 2023's central theme is Inhabiting the planet: Challenges for media, communication and beyond.

The 2023 IAMCR Conference encompasses two core questions which constitute its foundation: What does it mean to be human in a digital world? What does it mean to build a common future?

Incorporating the premonitions of various alternative media outlets, militant communities, opinion leaders (Wallace-Wells, 2019), philosophers and scholars (Morin, 2011; Latouche, 2016; Bourg et al, 2020), the conference will explore climate change's permanent consequences which have the power to render the planet inhabitable. Cultural conflicts and political tensions, the disappearance of natural resources, and foreseeable health crises will be analyzed as well. Turning however towards the future, the conference also incorporates voices articulating trust in technology's prospective contributions (Rifkin, 2011, 2014).

Combining these apprehensions with a belief in the future allows the conference to broach the key problematics of the digitalization of society and the technological transformation of nature, which require socio-political debate and governance (Feenberg, 1999, 2002). IAMCR 2023 grants the international society of media and communication scholars and researchers the opportunity to deliberate the diverse challenges associated with five pertinent themes: humanity and progress; democracy; media, information, and communication; cities and territories; and environmental accountability.

Within the realm of technological progress, the domains of computer science, engineering and medicine have brought numerous accomplishments. Accompanying these successes is a multitude of questions, pertaining to the logic of scientific innovations and its dialectics with society. These queries provide an opportunity for exploration, questioning the durability of society's democracy and addressing the issue of democratic political action in a global world, which are all crucial aims of the conference.

Through the lens of media and communication, digitalization has introduced several challenges predicted to complicate the future of society. The conference will address these historical and contemporary challenges specifically linked to industries and their economic models, expectations, practices, and societal status, throughout an obscure and rapidly maturing context.

Regarding cities and territories, the underlying question examined by the conference is “Will the 21st century be urban?” These studies include the questioning of three applicable characteristics: smart, sustainable, and creative cities, which each profoundly impact the urban ecosystem and its association with urban territories. The conference intends to investigate the role of state actors and the framework of national interventions which enforce restrictions, but which in turn allow for citizen representation through participation.

Finally, the 2023 IAMCR Lyon Conference aspires to accentuate the necessity of individual and collective environmental responsibility. Academics will highlight the influential impacts of reducing consumption of energy and natural resources, demonstrating the profound significance of not only their research but of actions exhibited by humanity, emphasizing each individual's essential role in protecting our planet.

An Environmentally Friendly Congress

The logistics of the IAMCR Lyon 2023 Conference have been designed by the LOC to be as sustainable and as respectful as possible, linked directly to the theme Inhabiting the Planet. We warn delegates that no bottles of water will be distributed but that water fountains will be available throughout the Rockefeller site, so remember to bring your own water bottle. Lunch will be in the form of lunch boxes, with vegetarian options, and delegates will only receive one set of cutlery, which they must keep for all subsequent lunches. Any undamaged and leftover food will be shared between volunteers and a charity with which the LOC has made arrangements. No air conditioning will be used, and no goodies or tote bags will be distributed to attendees to avoid increasing the number of our plastic and disposable objects, which contribute greatly to pollution. Free WIFI access will be available on-site for all participants¹. Virtual participation in the conference is possible, and all plenary sessions will be recorded for online viewing. Finally, the congress program will not be printed and will not be available in paper format; it will instead be available on the conference website in responsive formats to allow downloading or consultation.

Should you wish to calculate your carbon footprint in relation to your participation in the congress, you may visit the apps Carbon Footprint and CO2 Tracker, Adva, or Klima (available for IOS and Android).

¹ WIFI has proven to be more energy efficient than using mobile data due to transmission speeds and power consumption.

Opening Ceremony / Sunday July 9th - 4:30 PM

At 4:30pm on Sunday afternoon this year's opening ceremony begins at University Claude Bernard Lyon 1's Rockefeller campus, located in Lyon 8th district. Built in 1930 by a student of Tony Garnier's, Paul Bellemain, the Rockefeller Campus is composed of six buildings including the Faculty of Medicine Lyon East, the Institute of Pharmaceutical and Biological Sciences (ISPB), and the Institute of Rehabilitation Sciences and Techniques (ISTR).

©Université Lyon 1

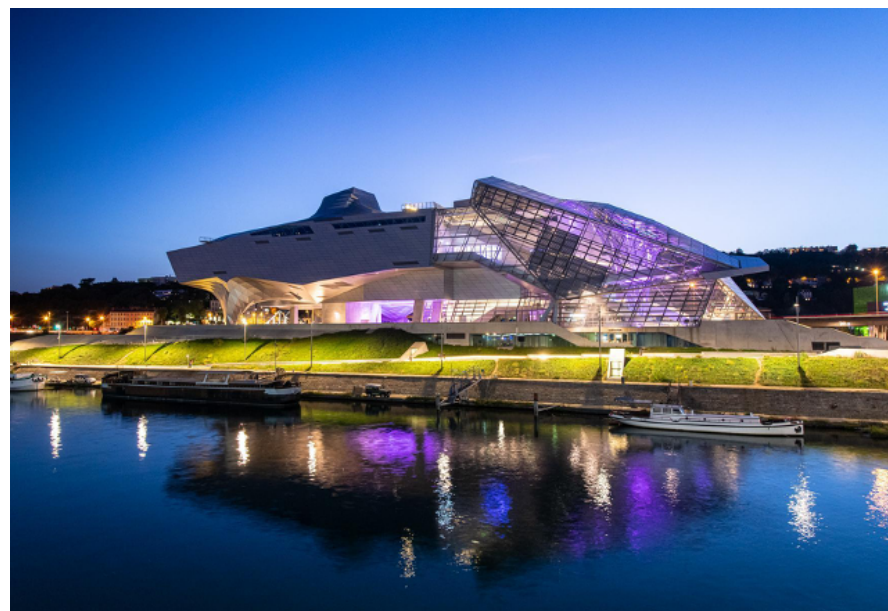

As the subject of a large architectural, technical, and heritage study in 2011, the estate's simultaneous renovations led to the discovery of several details dating back to the 1930s. Today, the original building has been restored, with the addition of a few modern touches. Its acoustic capacities, natural and artificial light, ventilation, and accessibility make Rockefeller an ideal location for this year's conference, the first in-person edition since 2019. The ceremony will begin with words of welcome and the 2023 congress's first opening plenary session, with a cocktail reception to follow.

Conference dinner / Wednesday July 12th - 8 PM

At 8pm on Wednesday evening, the 12th of July, the conference dinner will be held at the Musée des Confluences. Situated at the confluence of the Rhône and Saône rivers, the museum serves as a monument at the merging of two paths, symbolic of unity and openness towards global perspectives. Having opened on December 20th, 2014, the museum will celebrate its ninth anniversary this year. Its architectural concept, developed by the Austrian agency Coop Himmelb(l)au, pays tribute to the idea of building a bridge between constructed elements and nature. From the outside, the museum takes the shape of a crystal cloud made of glass and stainless steel, floating in the air. Inside are the natural history and anthropology exhibits, with works of art surrounding the themes of society and civilisation. Centred around the questions pertaining to human origin and the future of diversity, the museum has put in place four permanent exhibitions in the hopes of revealing unknown ways of understanding the sheer complexity of the world. Along with access to the soirée de gala event, congress attendees who have registered for the conference dinner will have the opportunity to visit two of these ongoing exhibitions, “Nous les Fleuves” and “Afrique, Mille Vies d’Objets”.

This year's conference dinner has the honor of welcoming the Professor & Friends group. Baptized by former IAMCR President Janet Wasko as the IAMCR house band, they will play in Lyon with vocalist Rebecca Lobry, pianist Jean Louis van Dam, bass player Ton Felices and drummer Ben Schröder. IAMCR past president Cees Hamelink leads the band, playing the vibrandoneon. The band will choose from its broad repertoire of the American Song Book swing, Brazilian bossa nova, Mexican bolero, film music, and French songs in Parisian jazz style.

Humanity, Alienation, and (In)Justice in the Digital Age

Christian FUCHS

Abstract

This talk asks and deals with the following question: How can we understand and explain the challenges humanity is facing today in the light of digitalisation?

First, the speaker argues that we need a critical theory of communication and society and that such a theory can in a feasible manner be based on insights from, updates and the further development of approaches that come from a variety of approaches in critical thought, theory, and philosophy. The presenter advances an approach to research that stands in the tradition of Critical Political Economy of Communication and combines critical theory, critical empirical social research, and critical ethics. In this context, the notions of radical (digital) humanism, social production, work, injustice as alienation, domination, exploitation, social struggles, media/communication/digital (in)justice, and democratic socialism/socialist democracy play an important role.

Second, the talk discusses the question: In what kind of societies do we live? It outlines some aspects of the notion of digital capitalism and compares it to other concepts such as the network society (Castells), surveillance capitalism (Zuboff), and platform capitalism (Srnicek).

Third, the talk will present aspects of specific case studies that deal with questions of humanity, (in)justice, and democracy in the digital age. The discussed cases will include the digital mediation of labour in the context of COVID-19; a critique of big data-based computational social science research methods; reflections on trends in academic publishing and open access publishing in the age of digital capitalism; digital violence; and the digital commons. All of these and other cases pose in one way or another the question: How have humanity and the role of humans in society been transformed in the digital age?

Fourth, the presentation will engage with the question of what alternatives there are to the explosion of a variety of forms of (digital) injustice and (digital) alienation that we are experiencing throughout the world today and what role communication and digitalisation play in this context. A key question in this context is how to organise communications, media systems, and the Internet in a just manner.

Christian Fuchs is Chair Professor of Media Systems and Media Organisation at Paderborn University's Department of Media Studies. Prior to taking up this position, he was Professor of Media, Communication & Society and Professor of Social Media at the University of Westminster. He is editor of the open access media and communication studies journal tripleC: Communication, Capitalism & Critique and was involved in founding the open access publishing house University of Westminster Press. Together with Klaus Unterberger (Austrian Broadcasting Corporation), Fuchs initiated the Public Service Media and Public Service Internet Manifesto.

His research and teaching are focused on the Critical Political Economy of Communication; the critical theory of communication and society; and digital media and society. Among his books are Media, Economy, and Society: A Critical Introduction; Social Media: A Critical Introduction; Digital Democracy and the Digital Public Sphere; Digital Ethics; Digital Humanism: A Philosophy for 21st Century Digital Society; Digital Fascism; Digital Capitalism; Foundations of Critical Theory; Communicating COVID-19: Everyday Life, Digital Capitalism and Conspiracy Theories in Pandemic Times; Marxist Humanism and Communication Theory; Marxism: Karl Marx's Fifteen Key Concepts for Cultural & Communication Studies; Nationalism on the Internet; Digital Demagogue; Critical Theory of Communication; Reading Marx in the Information Age; Digital Labour and Karl Marx; OccupyMedia!; Culture and Economy in the Age of Social Media; Internet and Society.

Plenary Session

Monday, July 10th, 2023

10:30-12:30 - Amphitheatres A, B, C.

International communication: On the Significance of Borders in the Digital Borderless World

This plenary session will discuss the paradoxical role of the media and communication technologies, which are both tools for crossing and for erecting (symbolic) borders. As this panel will explore to what extent borders remain key categories for understanding the realities of transnational flows in digital times, it will address such issues as: the ways in which, in this so-called borderless world, an increasing number of governments use all the means at their disposal to protect themselves against what they regard as being harmful digital transnational flows, and build new barriers against them; how social media, but also traditional media play a key role in the building of symbolic boundaries between “us” and “them”, or are used as instruments to fuel hatred between communities; how digital technologies constitute major components of the new walls that are erected by governments or international organizations for stemming transnational migration flows...

Words, sounds or images have never been so able to cross borders and have never circulated so rapidly, at an international scale. This is at least what the optimistic accounts on transnational connections in digital times suggest. These accounts tend, however, to neglect a series of obstacles that hinder these connections. Beyond, media and technologies are far from contributing only to the disruption of borders. On the contrary, they also actively contribute to the building of new kinds of physical or symbolic borders. It is this paradox of media and communication technologies being both tools for crossing or for erecting borders that will be discussed in this panel.

Moderator:

Tristan Mattelart is professor of International Communication at the French Institute of the Press, University Paris-Panthéon-Assas, and researcher at the Centre for Interdisciplinary Analysis and Research of the Media (CARISM). Currently, he studies the ways in which global digital platforms reconfigure the transnational circulation of news and cultural products.

Panellists:

Yu Hong is a professor of Communication at the College of Media and International Culture, Zhejiang University. She studies ICT4D, internet and media policy, digital capitalism, the politics of mediation, and shifting global communication order, with a focus on China. Her recent projects include a Chinese-language monograph on states and the cybersphere.

Daya Thussu is professor of International Communication at Hong Kong Baptist University. For many years, he was professor of International Communication at the University of Westminster in London. He is the author or editor of 20 books and founder and Managing Editor of the journal Global Media and Communication.

Stefania Milan (stefaniamilan.net) works at the intersection of participation, technology, and governance, with emphasis on infrastructure and agency. She is Professor of Critical Data Studies at the University of Amsterdam, affiliated with the Berkman Klein Center for Internet & Society (Harvard University) and the School of Transnational Governance (European University Institute).

Herman Wasserman is professor and chair of the Department of Journalism, Stellenbosch University, South Africa. He has published widely on media in Africa, journalism ethics, and disinformation in the Global South. He is Editor-in-Chief of the journals African Journalism Studies and the Annals of the International Communication, and Associate Editor of Communication Theory and International Communication Gazette.

Plenary Panel Session

Tuesday, July 11th, 2023

10:30-12:30 - Amphitheatres A, B, C

The contribution of academia to peace-building: Critique, creativity and activism

This plenary panel aims to discuss what academics can and should do to facilitate our peaceful inhabiting the planet. What academic strategies, practices and identities are desirable or necessary for this purpose? What are the risks and opportunities for deploying them, and how can we strengthen and diversify academia's contribution to peace-building?

Throughout history, academia has taken a multiplicity of positions in relation to conflict. The critical study of violent conflict has a long history, but academic activism and academic diplomacy in relation to violent conflict also have a substantial history. Moreover, action research, used also in conflict-affected societal contexts, incorporates a similar interventionist dimension. The omnipresence of violence on the society/community scale and its intense traumatic impacts necessitate our continued attention. This plenary panel aims to discuss what academics can/should do to facilitate our peaceful inhabiting the planet and what academic strategies, practices and identities are desirable or necessary for this.

Moderators:

Nico Carpentier is an Extraordinary Professor at Charles University (Prague, Czech Republic), Chief Research Fellow at Vilnius Gediminas Technical University (Lithuania) and IAMCR president.

Andrea Medrado is a Senior Lecturer at the School of Media and Communication at the University of Westminster (UK). Previously, she worked as a Tenured Assistant Professor at the Department of Social Communication and at the Postgraduate Programme in Media and Everyday Life of Federal Fluminense University (UFF) in Rio de Janeiro (Brazil). Andrea Medrado is an IAMCR vice-president.

Panellists:

Pilar Riaño-Alcalá is a Professor at the Social Justice Institute at the University of British Columbia (Canada), and co-lead of the Memory and Justice Research Stream.

Kaarle Nordenstreng is a Professor Emeritus of Journalism and Mass Communication at the Faculty of Information Technology and Communication Sciences at the University of Tampere.

Levi Obonyo is an Associate Professor of Media and Communication, and a Dean of the School of Communication at Daystar University in Kenya.

Lorenzo Angelini is a Senior Policy Officer at the European Peacebuilding Liaison Office, and he coordinates EPLO's work on peace and development. Prior to joining EPLO, Lorenzo worked as a Research Fellow for the Fund for Scientific Research

Anna Litvinenko is a researcher at the "Digitalization and Participation" department of the Institute for Media and Communication Studies, at the Freie Universität Berlin (Germany). Before, she worked as an Associate Professor at the Department of International Journalism of the Saint Petersburg State University (Russia).

Communication for Sustainable Societies in the Anthropocene – the role of scholars and media industries

Annika EGAN SJÖLANDER

Abstract:

This closing keynote returns to the overall theme of the conference, “Inhabiting the planet”, in order to engage in a dialogue about its challenging meaning for us as media and communication scholars today and in the future. Taking it seriously requires us to not only revise, but to profoundly re-work multiple boundaries and hierarchies in our own mundane knowledge production. This is not only a task for environmental communication scholars. The strong focus on social or societal dimensions is only one example. The habit of dividing humans from what we call nature is another, including the problematic hierarchy this distinction generally entails.

The role of media industries, a prime topic in our field, will also be discussed. They form parts of the commons in the Anthropocene and are therefore crucial when promoting much needed ‘just’ social change. At the same time, media industries themselves contribute in complex ways to the unprecedented environmental problems we face today, such as the climate crisis or biodiversity loss. The need for “greening the media” (Maxwell and Miller, 2012) has never been stronger.

Communication for sustainable societies in the Anthropocene, the title of this talk, points at the need for systematic and context-specific knowledge, both theoretical and empirical, about the role of media and communication when it comes to transformation(s) towards sustainability. Understanding “place” better, including global/local links and conflicts, is important. This will be exemplified with the case of emerging Climate Neutral Cities promoted by the EU Green Deal and the “green revolution” taking place in the Swedish North, all motivated by the climate crisis. Climate journalism and citizen dialogues in different places about this “green transition” are both key communication practices with democratic impact that ultimately influence societies’ ability to change.

About the speaker:

Annika Egan Sjölander is Professor and Chair in Media and Communication Studies at Umeå University, Sweden where she also leads the Umeå Transformation Research Initiative (UTRI), a cross-faculty network of researchers with an interest in transformation(s) towards sustainability. Egan Sjölander has taught and researched topics relating to science and the environment at several universities in Sweden (Umeå; Södertörn; Gävle) and elsewhere (Lancaster University, UK and UC Berkeley, USA). “Communication for Sustainable Societies in the Anthropocene” is the name of her research program that deals with the democratic role of media and communication when handling complex environmental problems such as nuclear waste, chemicals, climate change and water scarcity. Egan Sjölander was Chair of the Science and Environment Section in ECREA (2012-2018) and a founding member of the International Environmental Communication Association (IECA). In 2020 she edited The Local and the Digital in Environmental Communication together with colleagues from Australia, Belgium, India and Spain.

EMERGING TOPICS OF ENVIRONMENTAL AND ETHICAL ISSUES IN COMMUNICATION RESEARCH

Monday, July 10th, 16h-17h30

Room : Amphithéâtre de la médiathèque

This session will highlight the emerging topics of environmental communication and ethical issues in communication research. Both research fields have recently been crystallizing as SFSIC (Société Française des Sciences de l'Information et de la Communication) study and research groups (GER) with a pluriannual agenda and stable working collective, preparing regular events and publications. The session aims to present the research agenda and showcase recent research in both fields resonating with the overall conference theme.

Moderator: Philippe Bonfils, Professeur des universités au laboratoire IMSIC (ex I3M Toulon), Université de Toulon

Speakers:

- Anne Gagnebien, Associate professor in information and communication sciences at Toulon-Var University
- Amélie Coulbaut-Lazzarini, Associate professor in information and communication sciences at Grenoble-Alpes University (GRESEC)
- Carsten Wilhelm, Associate professor at U. Haute-Alsace at Mulhouse, Vice-President of International Relations at the SFSIC, and co-founder of the GER Digital Ethics
- Jean-Claude Domenget, Associate professor (HDR) at the University of Franche-Comté, Vice-president of Professional Relations at the SFSIC, and as co-editor of the journal Communication and Professionalisation

PARTNER SESSION

What's next for the UNESCO Guidelines for Regulating Digital Platforms

Monday July 10th, 14h-15h30

Room: Amphithéâtre de la médiathèque

UNESCO's latest draft of its Guidelines follows its February global conference. This latest version draws upon a side event by IAMCR, as well as studies by Research ICT Africa plus the Centre for Law and Democracy. Dozens of consultation sessions are taking place worldwide to assess pitfalls and promises. The final outcome document in September will feed into wider UN processes. This session will cover these issues and canvass ideas for uptake and adaptation.

Speakers:

- Robin Mansell, LSE
- Yasmin Curzi de Mendonca, FGV
- Aimée Vega Montiel, Ciudad Universitaria
- Bruce Mutsaers, UNESCO Chair on Disinformation, Data and Democracy at Utrecht University
- Steph Hill, Co-chair, Emerging Scholars Network at IAMCR, University of Leicester
- Jeremy Shtern, Toronto Metropolitan University

Presentations:

“Why, how and what: The process to date”, Guilherme Canela, UNESCO
“Background research for the Guidelines”, Guy Berger, Research ICT Africa

SPECIAL SESSION

Teaching Journalism Today

Monday July 10th, 8h30-10h / Room: Amphithéâtre de la médiathèque

This session presents the results of the first global survey of journalism educators and their views on the future of the profession. The speakers will discuss journalism teachers' views in relation to surveys of journalists and journalism students. Hosted by the World Journalism Education Council and UNESCO, the session will launch the WJEC survey report as well as two new UNESCO resources for journalism educators, the handbooks Teaching Journalism Online and Reporting on Artificial Intelligence.

Convenor:

Verica Rupar, Auckland University of Technology, WJEC Chair

Speakers:

Nico Drok: Windesheim University (The Netherlands), Thomas Hanitzsch: LMU Munich (Germany), Trevor Cullen: Edith Cowan University (Australia), Guy Berger: former Director for Strategies and Policies in Communication and Information at UNESCO, Susan Keith (USA), Rutgers University.

SPECIAL SESSION

Commemorating Brenda Dervin

Tuesday, July 11th, 8h30-10h / Room: Salle des thèses

This session will commemorate Brenda Dervin, who was Professor Emeritus of Communication at Ohio State University and served as the first female president of the International Communication Association from 1985-1987. She was active in IAMCR for many years, heading the Publications Committee and contributing in many other ways. She is known for her work in communication, library and information science, and for her Sense-Making Theory and Methodology, which has been widely adopted by researchers across disciplines.

Chairs:

SPECIAL SESSION

Multimodal scholarship at IAMCR

Tuesday July 11th, 8h30-10h

Room: Salle du Conseil

This session will facilitate a broader conversation about the epistemological, methodological, ethical, and political considerations involved in multimodal research and IAMCR's role in supporting this kind of work. Participants include members of INTER/ACTIONS: Multimodal Academic Communication, a recently established Task Force whose mandate is to develop and implement strategies that stimulate multimodal scholarship at IAMCR.

Convenor:

Sandra Ristovska, Assistant Professor,
University of Colorado Boulder

Speakers:

- Sandra Ristovska, Assistant Professor, University of Colorado Boulder, USA
- Jeremy Shtern, Professor, Toronto Metropolitan University, Canada
- Pedro Pinto de Oliveira, Professor, Universidade Federal de Mato Grosso, Brazil
- Nico Carpentier, Professor, Charles University, the Czech Republic
- Aysu Arsoy, Associate Professor, Eastern Mediterranean University, Cyprus

PARTNER SESSION

Communication and Democracy: Risks and Possibilities for the Future

Tuesday, July 11th, 14h-15h30

Room: Amphithéâtre de la médiathèque

The partner session of the Latin American Association of Communication Researchers (ALAIC) is a continuation of the work we have been doing in our association throughout the previous editions of IAMCR in order to build a dialogue between researchers and activists from different regions of the world. This year it focuses on the link between communication and democracy.

It is our intention that this activity will allow us to systematise proposals and actions that can intensify cooperation between researchers, associations and civil society based on practices related to the recognition of differences and similarities. For this session, we invited researchers from five continents to reflect on communication and democracy and, in particular, on the risks and possibilities that are being experienced in the present and are unfolding towards the future in the different regions.

Chairs:

Dr. Fernando Oliveira Paulino (ALAIC President)
Daniela Monje (ALAIC Vice-President)

Presentations:

- Eduardo Villanueva-Mansilla: Director of International Relations at ALAIC / Professor, Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú
- Andrea Medrado: IAMCR Vice President / University of Westminster
- Gerard Goggin: Professor of Media and Communications, School of Art, Communication and English, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, University of Sydney
- Kanchan Malik: Professor, Department of Communication, Sarojini Naidu School of Arts & Communications, University of Hyderabad, India.

SPECIAL SESSION

Introducing the Handbook of Media and Culture in the Middle East: Implications for Area Studies Research and Publication

Tuesday, July 11th, 14h -15h30

Room: salle des thèses

The co-editors will share insights about their editorial approach, which draws on the humanities, arts, and social sciences, to account for the Middle East's diverse, vibrant, and complex media and cultural scenes. They also discuss challenges to include perspectives and experiences from the region without limiting any discussion necessarily to a single national, ethnic or religious scope.

This session would interest scholars who study other regions/national contexts since it provides a framework for conceptual and empirical analyses that address pertinent questions about culture and media. The panel is organized around a series of co-editors' interventions, allowing for a productive discussion with the attendees.

Since the Handbook of Media and Culture in the Middle East is the first collection dedicated to a region in the IAMCR/Wiley series, this panel invites collective thinking about future contributions from and about areas of the Global South.

Convenor: Janet Wasko, University of Oregon Speakers:

Chair: Karin Wilkins, University of Miami

- Joe F. Khalil: Northwestern University-Qatar,
- Gholam Khiabany: Goldsmiths, University of London, UK,
- Tourya Gouaaybess: Université de Lorraine, France,
- Bilge Yesil: College of Staten Island, CUNY, USA.

SPECIAL SESSION

Memorial Tribute to Professor Annabelle Sreberny (1949-2022)

Tuesday, July 11th, 16h-17h30

Room: Salle des thèses

Annabelle's sudden death at the close of 2022 robbed the global academy, IAMCR, and her many devoted colleagues and friends, of a splendid scholar-activist-mensch. She was committed to feminist, global, justice-oriented media research and teaching. She made strong contributions to IAMCR for over four decades, including as President (2009-2012), as International Council member, on the Publications Committee, to name only the most salient ones. She consistently promoted and defended the interests of the professional community of media and communication researchers in freedom of academic thought and expression and in career development.

This tribute will provide multiple academic and personal glimpses of this very productive author, whose works are widely cited, and are used in classes across the planet. After brief statements by the participants listed below, the microphone will be open to those present.

Convenor/s:

Claudia Padovani, University of Padova
John Downing, Southern Illinois
University

Participants:

- Robin Mansell: past IAMCR President; London School of Economics
- Janet Wasko: past IAMCR President; University of Oregon,
- Nico Carpentier: IAMCR President; Charles University, Czech Republic
- Marjan de Bruin: University of the West Indies, Mona
- John Downing: past IAMCR Vice-President; Southern Illinois University
- Joe Khalil: Northwestern University in Qatar
- Gholam Khiabany: Goldsmiths College, London University
- Claudia Padovani: Università di Padova, Marc Raboy: McGill University.

SPECIAL SESSION

Gender Equality and Freedom of Expression at Stake. The role of regulation. IAMCR Task Force for GAMAG

Wednesday, July 12th, 8h30-10h

Room : Salle du conseil

Based on the action-oriented proposal of the Global Alliance for Media and Gender (GAMAG), the New Gender Deal for Media and Digital Communications, from a feminist critical standpoint, this Special Session will focus on the role of media and digital laws and policies for the protection of gender equality and freedom of expression.

Chair:

Aimée Vega Montiel, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México

Participants:

- Anita Gurumurthy: ITforChange, Sarah Macharia: WACC
- Agneta Söderberg: FOJO
- Claudia Padovani: University of Padova
- Albana Shala: GAMAG/Free Press Unlimited
- Guilherme Canela, UNESCO.

SPECIAL SESSION

Tierra Común: Building Academic and Activist Solidarity In/With the Global South

Wednesday, July 12th, 10h30-12h30

Room: Amphithéâtre de la médiathèque

The Global North currently dominates debates on tech and big data, as noted at the IAMCR 2019 special session on 'Big Data and Datafication: Taking Seriously Perspectives from the Global South'. This new special session asks how academics can respond to this imbalance, drawing on the example of the Tierra Común network of academics and activists, formed in 2020 by Paola Ricaurte, Ulises Mejias and Nick Couldry to challenge data colonialism.

This session, chaired by Couldry, draws specifically on current research and activist practices by members of Tierra Común to highlight how Global North hegemony can practically be resisted through collaborative working practices and conceptual innovation. In this way, across all the contributors, the panel will raise the broader question of how academics can best put their research to use, in dialogue with those outside the academy, in order to serve social change.

Chair: Nick Couldry, London School of Economics

Presentations and speakers:

- Nick Couldry: London School of Economics,
- Nai Lee Kalema: University College London / What is Digital Racial Capitalism: Data colonialism's entanglements with racial capitalism
- Andres Lombana Bermudez: Javeriana University/ Dialogues on Alternative Data Governance Approaches: Reflections from the TC network
- Anita Say Chan: University of Illinois/ The Active Archive: Tierra Comun and Feminist Engagements of the Local Archive

SPECIAL SESSION

Faster, Higher, Stronger: Mental Health Among Communication and Media Scholars

Wednesday July 12th, 10h30-12h30

Room: Salle du conseil

Recent evidence on the state of mental health among academics paints an alarming picture. Faculty members and PhD students around the world run a high risk of developing mental health issues, including anxiety, depression, and burnout, at some point in their career. The structural conditions of academic work, such as high publication pressure, fierce competition, and a culture of constant evaluation, may well contribute to the problem; and the pandemic has clearly intensified it. Based on a worldwide survey of media and communication scholars (n = 1028), the panel presents evidence on the mental health situation of academics in our field. Panellists discuss implications and possible ways forward from a range of relevant perspectives from within IAMCR.

Convenor:

Thomas Hanitzsch, LMU Munich

Speakers:

- Thomas Hanitzsch: LMU Munich,
- Antonia Markiewitz: LMU Munich,
- Gerard Goggin: Secretary General, IAMCR,
- Stephanie Hill: Co-Chair, IAMCR Emerging Scholars Network.
- Fiona Martin: IAMCR Committee for the Improvement of Academic Life

PARTNER SESSION

Trustworthy and Responsible AI: Communication Perspectives

Wednesday July 12th, 14h-15h30

Room: Amphithéâtre de la médiathèque

AI is now replacing, assisting, and/or augmenting human communicators in diverse roles, thereby altering the processes and outcomes of communication in a substantial way – for better or worse. This session brings together communication/media/journalism scholars who directly tackle the questions of what challenges and opportunities recent advances in artificial intelligence (AI) have presented in different communication contexts. In particular, participants will discuss the matters of trust and responsibility of AI from psychological, political, and socio-cultural perspectives.

Chair:

Eun-Ju Lee, Seoul National University,
Republic of Korea.

Presentations and speakers:

Sun Sun Lim: Singapore Management University
Responsible, Accountable, Transparent – Is There a Rat in Guidelines for Ethical AI?

S. Shyam Sundar: Pennsylvania State University
Accurate Calibration of Trust Important for Responsible AI

Andrea L. Guzman: Northern Illinois University

SPECIAL SESSION

Reflections on the International Association for Media and Communication Research: Many Voices, One Forum – Book Launch

Wednesday July 12th, 16h-17h30

Room: Salle des pas perdus

Past IAMCR President, Janet Wasko, created an IAMCR History Commission in 2018, chaired by Professor Jörg Becker, to produce a collection of papers capturing the Association's history from its establishment in 1957. The book contains 34 chapters focusing on prominent areas of research, political struggles across the East and West and global North and global South, selected accounts of country and regional research, and reflections on the scholarly and institution-building contributions of George Gerbner, James Halloran, Stuart Hall, Herbert I. Schiller, and Dallas W. Smythe. This history offers insight into the controversies, conflicts, failings, and achievements by IAMCR members who contributed to the development of media and communication research and journalism practice over an extended period.

The Commission's work was guided by its members Binod Agrawal, Cees Hamelink, Robin Mansell, Kaarle Nordenstreng, Usha Raman, Sandra Ristovska and Eduardo Villanueva-Mansilla (at various times including Ulla Carlsson and the late Annabelle Sreberny and the late Binod Agrawal). The Commission's work was also supported by Bruce Girard, Shruti Singhal and our Palgrave editor, Lauriane Piette. This special session, co-sponsored with Palgrave Publishers, will celebrate publication of the book edited by Jörg Becker and Robin Mansell. As a hybrid session with speakers introducing the book and drinks, the book will be available at a discounted price for IAMCR members.

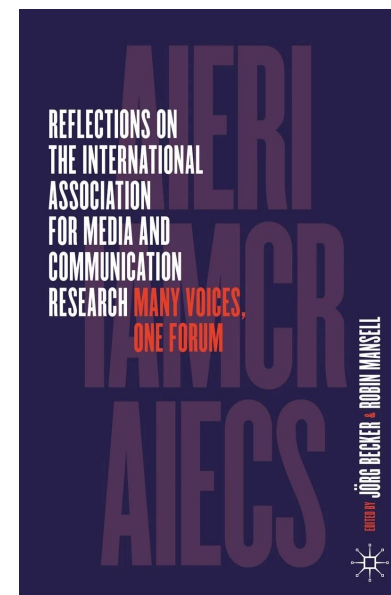

Convenors:

Joerg Becker and Robin Mansell

Chair: Robin Mansell, London School of Economics and Political Science

Speakers:

Jörg Becker: professor and chair of the IAMCR History Commission, Janet Wasko: former IAMCR president and founder of the IAMCR History Commission, Cees Hamelink: IAMCR History Commission member, Robin Mansell: IAMCR History Commission member, Lauriane Piette: Palgrave editor.

SPECIAL SESSION

Communication for Development Contributions to the Sustainable Development Goals – Research Supported by the UNICEF/IAMCR C4D Fund

Thursday July 13th, 10h30-12h30

Room: Salle des thèses

The UNICEF/IAMCR C4D Research Fund, established in 2019, supports small research initiatives that advance our understanding of how Communication for Development (C4D) contributes to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Projects supported by the Fund feed into the work of the Global Alliance for Social and Behavioural Change (GA4SBC) that IAMCR is a member of, in particular the Evidence for Impact Cluster. This cluster is tasked with compiling evidence from social and behavioural change communication initiatives to advance the scale, quality, impact and sustainability of this field in support of the SDGs.

This panel first offers an introduction to the IAMCR/UNICEF C4D Research Fund, an update on the work of the GA4SBC, after which the 2021 UNICEF/IAMCR C4D Research Fund awardees present their research. Following responses by two discussants representing HEC and GEN (the Working Group and Section that the award recipients' research aligns with), a discussion will be facilitated.

Convenors:

Task Force on the Global Alliance for Social and Behaviour Change (Vice-chair: Elske van de Fliert)

Chair: Elske van de Fliert, The University of Queensland/IAMCR Taskforce on GASBC

Presenters:

Introductions: Elske van de Fliert: The University of Queensland/IAMCR Taskforce on GASBC and Tom Jacobsen: Temple University/IAMCR Taskforce on GA4SBC

Award presentations: Solomon Oyeleye: Caleb University, Nigeria, Ifedolapo Ademosu: Caleb University, Nigeria and Sneha Gupta and Kulveen Trehan: Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University, India

Respondents: Professor Eliza Govender: University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa and Vice Co-Chair Health Communication Working Group, and Dr. Wajiha Raza Rizvi: Beaconhouse National University, Pakistan, Vice Co-Chair Gender and Communication Section.

SPECIAL SESSION

IAMCR Awards Special Session with Award Recipients

Thursday July 13th, 14h-15h30

Room: Salle des thèses

IAMCR offers awards to recognise the contribution of outstanding conference papers to the field of Communication and Media Studies. This special session aims to create a platform where conference participants can get to know the recipients of the IAMCR awards. The speakers are the IAMCR President, the representatives of the award selection committees, and the recipients of the IAMCR awards who will be present in Lyon.

Convenors: Nico Carpentier, Gerard Goggin, Elske van de Fliert, Bruce Girard, Andrea Medrado, Usha Raman

FLOW34 - 2023 Edition

Flow34 is a platform specifically designed to showcase innovative audio and/or visual contributions. It offers a wide array of videos and podcasts that skilfully merge academic and aesthetic elements to communicate academic knowledge.

All these captivating Flow34 works are screened at the Amphi Lacassagne throughout the conference (09-13 July) on a permanent rotating basis. Additionally, a panel with the creators of the Flow34 videos and podcasts is scheduled for Monday, July 10th, from 08:30 to 10:00 at the Amphi Lacassagne.

This provides a valuable opportunity to meet the authors of the Flow34 videos and podcasts, who will be present in Lyon and directly engage with the authors behind these remarkable works.

Digital challenges transforming governance and research:

New research approaches and publications

12 July, 2023 14h00 to 15h30 Room 202 Cier

Panel co-sponsored by the Working Group on Global Media Policy, the IAMCR Publication Committee and the IAMCR/Palgrave Series

Chairs: Claudia Padovani, University of Padova, Italy & Marjan de Bruin, University of the West Indies, Jamaica

The panel brings together editors and authors who contributed in recent and forthcoming collections published in the IAMCR/Palgrave series, all of which address governance issues related to media, communication, the digital and fundamental rights: Media Governance. A Cosmopolitan Critique; Communication governance at the crossroads; Epistemic rights in the Era of Digital Disruption (see <https://iamcr.org/publications/iamcr-book-series>), alongside contributors to a Javnost. The Public themed issue on 'Global challenges to digital media policy and regulation'. Each volume elaborates on 'the global' in relation to communication developments, actors' interactions and power relations, old and emerging challenges to fundamental rights. The aim of this panel is to mobilize reflections and prospective visions that may emerge by networking the content of chapters and articles, so as to guide collaborative future research, also in view of possible IAMCR contributions to the WSIS+20 events planned for 2025.

Introductory remarks:

- Maria Michalis, Chair, IAMCR Publication Committee (University of Westminster)
- Lauriane Piette, Editor, Palgrave Macmillan

Finding pathways to open access: A round table discussion

10 July, 2023 14h00 to 15h30, Room 202 Cier

A key concern for scholars globally is that of widespread and equitable access to research publications. How can we work towards building a truly open and inclusive information landscape that removes (or shares in a fair way) the burden of publishing costs from either author or reader? What feasible alternatives might be imagined? We invite your participation in a focused discussion around these issues in the hope of broadening our understanding and arriving at some answers.

You're attending the IAMCR Lyon 23 because you have results to share. But what's the best way to reach the widest appropriate audience? The Palgrave Macmillan editors who are here can help answer that question. You can take the opportunity to meet us. If you haven't written a book before, they can give you a quick introduction to the process. And if you have, they can show you how publishing a book with Palgrave Macmillan would be different from other publishers. They can also help answer any questions you might have about Palgrave Macmillan journals.

Every kind of article or book you might write can find its home here, including in fully OA books and journals. Meet us at our booth and see the quality, breadth, and depth of what we publish; and also, how your research might find its place here.

We publish cutting-edge, interdisciplinary research in Film and TV studies, Media and Communication, Journalism and Cultural Studies with a broad range of emerging and leading scholars from around the globe. Our areas of focus include popular culture, identity, gender, globalization, memory studies, visual culture, media and cultural policy, media management, adaptation studies and much more. <https://twitter.com/PalgraveCultMed> Join the conversation by using #HumanitiesCampaign

ENS ÉDITIONS Questioning the world, spreading knowledge, opening up science

For almost fifty years, ENS Éditions has been committed to the sharing of knowledge in the humanities and social sciences, and to its promotion in France and abroad. From the Cahiers de Fontenay, published by the ENS of Fontenay-aux-Roses in 1975, to the creation of ENS Éditions in Lyon in 2000, the academic publishing house has built up a catalog of nearly two thousand titles, enriched each year by over fifty new titles (books and journals). These publications, which display a wide range of disciplines – such as philosophy, literature, linguistics, history, geography, sociology, political science and intellectual history, education sciences, economics, the history of the book, arts, sciences – bring attention to the field of the humanities and social sciences through fourteen book collections, two series dedicated to source publishing, and thirteen journals. Through a rigorous and demanding process of selection and evaluation of manuscripts, a high-quality editorial work, a meticulous production, a professional distribution policy, and a collaboration with all the actors of the book trade, the publishing house contributes to the transmission and to the promotion of contemporary research in the humanities and social sciences. To ensure the broadest possible distribution, all new publications are published in both print and digital formats. Over nine hundred titles are accessible worldwide, and in all file formats (PDF, ePub, HTML), on platforms dedicated to the distribution of electronic resources renowned for their excellence in the humanities and social sciences.
